

2.2 Mixed-Mode Boolean Expression

A semantic to be considered in procedural programming is $$(a < b) + (b < a)$$

In this case, it is an arithmetic expression. Not all procedural syntax allows this sort of mixing.

1. Conditionals are special types of expressions.
2. The case of mixed expressions forces conditional expressions include type information.
Reference Figure 8.25.